A People's History of the United States is a 1980 non-fiction book by American historian and political scientist Howard Zinn. In the book, Zinn presented what he considered to be a different side of history from the more traditional "fundamental nationalist glorification of country". Zinn portrays a side of American history that can largely be seen as the exploitation and manipulation of the majority by rigged systems that hugely favor a small aggregate of elite rulers from across the orthodox p

Zinn also acknowledges that a history of the U.S., told from the perspective of persecuted peoples, can be very pessimistic. However, he wants to give a sense of the “brief flashes” of history during which ordinary people banded together and sometimes emerged victorious. That, in short, is his “approach to the history of the United States.”

In 1897, Theodore Roosevelt wrote, "I should welcome almost any war, for I think this country needs one." War serves an important purpose for any nation, Zinn argues: it directs the people's energy outward, toward a foreign threat. The elites of the U.S. probably didn't consciously plan a war, but the fact remains that war strengthened their power by focusing the people's attention ...
